President's Report

Happy New Bridge Year to you all. I hope that 2021 will allow us to continue to enjoy living and playing bridge in the best state in Australia.

Late last year the NSWBA realized that the ANC, due to be held in Orange NSW in July, was going to be problematic. Venues simply refuse to commit to numbers above what may be lingering social distancing requirements. Consequently, the NSWBA and the ABF approached BAWA and asked us to consider swapping the 2021 and 2023 ANC events. We agreed with pleasure; due to the cancellation of the APBF international event last April, the ABF still had a deposit in credit at the Perth Convention Centre. We have utilized that deposit and the APBF organising committee, headed by Robina McConnell, was ready to reform and take up the reins. Consequently, the 2021 ANC will be held at the Convention Centre between July 12 and 22. The Gold Point Swan River Swiss Pairs will be held as immediately before the ANC teams on the weekend of July 10-11.

We hope that COVID climate in Australia by late July will be conducive for interstate travel and that we have a successful 2021 ANC. The West Australia bridge community can rest assured that if health regulations cause a cancellation BAWA has no financial liability. Should that occur the Swan River Swiss will still occur but be relocated to Melville.

Clubs and players who offered assistance for the APBF Congress are urged to consider a similar contribution; Robina will be contacting you shortly.

We have all played in Swiss Pairs event where, in any one round, or more, the hands seem to favour one side or the other. Not having any cards of substance does make it harder to win the round; this can be frustrating particularly if this occurs in the final round. This has led to a few calls for the values to be more equally distributed either by re-dealing or manually. Let me be quite clear – it is against International, National and State regulations to in any way modify or re-deal computer-generated hands that are to be used in ANY Green, Red or Gold point event. Should this occur then the immediate penalty would be the cancellation of masterpoints, further sanctions may be considered. The only time that boards may be manipulated is for teaching purposes. This includes supervised sessions provided that they are not awarding masterpoints.

The Summer Pairs Red Point was held on Monday 18 January 2021, directed by Peter Wilson.

Congratulations to the winners Barbara Hendrie and Wendy Baillie with 65.05% and Sue and Ken Green with 58.33%. All pictured here with the Club President, Graham Woodard (Centre)

Our Christmas Lunch, at the Hillarys Yacht Club, on Tuesday 15 December 2020 was a most enjoyable afternoon with good company, food and wine.

VALE Neale Consigliere

Sadly, one of our long-time members, Neale Consigliere, passed away on 27/12/20 after a long battle with ill health. Neale was a Silver Life Member of the ABF and well known around the bridge tables of Western Australia. He lived for bridge, the Eagles, his latest joke and his family. He will be missed.

Our next members only Red Point will be on 11/2/21 and the AGM is scheduled for 15/2/21 at noon.

Please check our website

CONGRATULATIONS

Our hearty congratulations go to Bill Symons who won the Bob Simpson award for outstanding service to the Club during 2020. Bill is a tireless worker for the Club as Tournament Manager, director, teacher and BAWA representative, as well as being one of our most enthusiastic Club members. We're sad to say that he is giving up part of his teaching role and has handed over the beginners' lessons to Ian Wake. However, he continues his Wednesday morning workshops, which is good news for the Wednesday group.

Jeannie Ravn, daughter of trophy donor Bob Simpson, presents the trophy to Bill Symons.

Ducking

From David Schokman

We all know that there are occasions that we must avoid winning a trick, or even having to give away a trick that it may not have been necessary to lose. Sometimes this has got to be done for the greater good, and that is to make your contract, or to keep the dangerous hand off lead. This is also called an Avoidance play. Is there a difference? While the difference between a hold up, and ducking is mechanically identical, a Hold-up is in a suit played by an opponent, while a Duck (or ducking), is a manoeuvre in one's own suit – both available in the deal featured today. This is such a basic card playing technique that it was so disappointing to see the very high percentage of players who missed recognizing the situation in the team's event at a WABC congress team's event last December. The worst part of it all was that the error was not confined to restricted players. The sad, and disappointing, thread of the entire column is about how poorly so many of us played. So, we are all going to concentrate more and lift our game in 2021.

		♥	AKQ
		♦	A86
		♣	74

This should be such a simple deal. A 2NT opening by south, and with the north hand you cannot be blamed for considering a slam, as with the cards in the right place even 13 tricks could be available. I do not know your style, but if you found that your partner had three keycards and 20 -22 points, it is very likely that you would be in 6C, or 6NT if you wanted the lead to go up to the strong hand. Playing in a match point event it is more likely that you will be in 6NT. Only seven pairs bid to a slam. Four in the hopeless 6NT, and 3 in 6C where one lucky pair made 12 tricks on the lead of the spade ten. This really is a pointless lead as you have a natural trump trick, and surely you should be trying something else. Those of you can remember Jack Lever may recall that he always recommended that you should be trying to establish a trick when defending against a slam, so, on this deal, I feel certain that Jack would probably have selected a diamond. However, we are not interested in the slams, and are considering a hold-up, and ducking. 66 pc of the field was in 3NT, and 66 pc of them failed to make the 10 tricks that are always available. So, we can assume that west will lead the knave of diamonds. Declarer should hold-up, and should do the same on the second diamond, only winning the third trick with the ace. If diamonds break 4-4 ten tricks are always available. Now you concentrate on your club suit and play the seven. What should you play from dummy? Not the ace, king or queen, just the three. East wins - has no diamond to return and shifts to the spade ten. You win with ace and have your 10 tricks. These were two very basic declarer techniques which should really have had a 100-pc success rate, as playing in a Swiss event you must never risk your contract for an overtrick. Now if you were playing Match Point pairs, you will play the top clubs off, because you will now be taking the 67-pc chance of clubs breaking 3-2 rather than the 28-pc chance of them being 4-1. The first play of leading the seven and running it will also bring outstanding success particularly if west happens to hold four clubs to the knave - ten. So ducking that first club is a win-win situation, and I doff my hat to you if you found the play. As for the rest of you, I believe that you will never, ever, forget a ducking play again. If you happen to be in 6C, you will have to play for the 3-2 club break and take two finesses against the spade king, again hoping that spades will break 3-3, with the king onside. So, every deal has its challenges but the solutions are often so simple. I should know about "simple" solutions as I made some real doozies on the day, but this was not one of them, because I had the four clubs!

Kim Frazer wins International Bridge Press Association Master Point Press 2020 Book of the Year Award

Kim Frazer, an Olympian in Athens 2004 and winner of three gold medals in four Commonwealth games for shooting, has won a prestigious international award for writing a bridge book “Gaining the Mental Edge at Bridge.”

The International Bridge Press Association has 300 journalists as members around the world. The award is sponsored by Master Point Press and normally presented at the Hainan Bridge Festival in China. Hopefully when travel restrictions are lifted Kim will be travelling to Hainan to accept the award in person.

The award was announced at the IBPA AGM by the President, Barry Rigal, who visits Australia often to edit the Daily Bulletin at the Gold Coast Congress.

In shooting Kim was National Women’s Champion on seven occasions and National Open champion twice.

In bridge Kim has represented Victoria in Women’s and Open teams and has won selection for the Australian Women’s Team.

It was in shooting that Kim became interested in the mental side of sport. When she took up Bridge she started writing articles for Australian bridge magazines and the French bridge magazine Le Brigueur on the application of sports psychology in bridge. In this book she has adapted the mental techniques that brought her success in shooting and how to use these at the bridge table.

The foreword of her book was written by Ron Klinger, champion Australian bridge player, Bridge author of over 70 books and bridge columnist for the SMH for 18 years. Ron wrote “I am anxious to try out these new ideas and incorporate them as part of my regular regime. I can’t wait for my next bridge game! I would just like to bar all of my regular opponents from reading this book.”

Kim is still heavily involved in the administration of shooting and bridge and is Secretary of the Australian Bridge Federation.

The President of the ABF, Allison Stralow, says “It is a great honour for Australian bridge that Kim has won such a prestigious award against international competition.”

Kim won the award from a shortlist of international bridge writers including David Bird author of 130 books, Larry Cohen best known for “The Law of Total Tricks”, Mike Lawrence who has won three Bermuda Bowls and Nicolas Hammond who was also famous for solving the Rubik’s Cube in 37 seconds.

Kim is the fifth Australian to have won this award and only the second woman following champion Sabine Auken from Germany in 2006 with “I Love This Game”.

Australian winners IBPA Book of the Year:

- 2009 Ron Klinger (Right Though the Pack Again)
- 2013 Bill Jacobs (Fantunes Revealed)
- 2014 Tim Bourke and Justin Corfield (The Art of Director Play)
- 2017 Sartaj Hans (Bidding the Best)
- 2020 Kim Frazer (Gaining the Mental Edge at Bridge)

These winners demonstrate the exceptional standard of bridge writing in Australia.

Kim’s book “Gaining the Mental Edge at Bridge” can be bought in paperback or as a digital download from The Bridge Shop or from Paul Lavings Bridge Books.

DEEP-AND-MEANINGFULS #14

Paul Brayshaw taps into the innermost thoughts of Deep Finesse®...

“... and the chances of getting three tricks are exactly 13.6%, to one decimal place. Much better than the 12.4% by playing the ace first,” she says, with a contented glance at you over her left shoulder. You and DF are lying side-by-side in her odd little world, gazing up lazily at a suit combination that her playing-card troupe has formed over your heads:

(C) J987 (C) A543

Your friendship with DF has really developed in the last few months. Having discovered in each other the company you have both so keenly desired but found so sorely lacking in others, she has more regularly brought the two of you together in your dreams for meaningful discussions about the things that really matter, such as the intra-finesse in question hovering above you. Of course, you both know well that the best chance for three tricks here is to play a small one towards the J987, putting in the nine if the second hand plays a low card (the intra-finesse). Then, if that loses to an honour, you run the jack on the next round, hoping to pin the ten. Unlike DF, however, you are unable to calculate the chances of success in your head in a fraction of a second.

“That’s interesting,” you comment, “I calculated it to be 16.4% the other day. I expect we are thinking differently about what the opponent playing in second seat will do with KT or QT doubleton.”

"What do you mean?" she responds, quizzically.
 "They will play a random one."

Aaaah, yes, the mind of your peculiar friend. You will have no hope of convincing her that no-one in the real world would play the ten in that situation, just as no-one would play the ten from Tx, either, in the hope of misleading you. That's not how she thinks about the world and is the reason why she is so good at the service she provides to the game. The friendship is far more valuable to you than winning such a petty squabble, so you remain silent, nod, and gaze at those beguiling fingers of hers and their ever-changing arrangements of bling. Your eyes then wander over to that unusual crown of cards on her head – as neat and immaculately seated now, when she is in repose, as it usually is when she sits or stands. For the thousandth time, you wonder how to goodness this has all come about, and why you have been so fortunate to have such a unique situation. It has made you happy. You are sure that DF feels likewise, given that she has become less guarded with you and has shown behaviours that reflect true emotions. You catch her eye, and a big smile confirms your thoughts.

"There was a hand the other day," you suddenly recall. "I was at a soiree with some friends who had played in the Swiss Pairs of the WABC Congress that day, where Board 4 had caused a lot of discussion. No-one could work out how to make 6C, not even the experienced player leading the discussion, by all accounts."

"Yes, I know the one you mean," she replies in that subtle voice of hers, and a quick gesture of her hands sends the band of playing cards into a frenzy, reconstructing the deal above the two of you. "East and West can both make 6C."

You considered, at the time the hand record was shoved under your nose, that in 6C a heart could be ruffed in the short hand and the diamond loser parked on the SQ. However, a trump or diamond lead from North would put paid to that, and that was obviously what the discussion had been about. Then, some juicy gossip had distracted you from any further analysis, and you hadn't thought about it since.

"Well?" your companion asks, playfully. "Do you agree? Or perhaps I should leave you to it for an hour or two?"

Choosing a Multi Two

By Di Brooks

Many years ago, also at the dawn of Bridge Time, the 2 Openings were always showing a very strong hand, with a long suit. Then we evolved to using 2 Clubs as the strongest hand, no matter what the shape. Along came the computer-generated hands which has seen more than its share of 2 Suiter Hands, with the emphasis on the weaker point count. Now we know that shape rules.

If you do not believe me, have a read of Marty Bergen's "Points Schmoints". So, if you have not been converted to a Multi Two, then I suggest you look at your normal sessions' hand record. You should get quite a surprise regarding the number of shaped hands. At the moment I am perusing the hand record for the 8th round of the Metro G.N.O.T. Fourteen boards a round, with eleven out of the fourteen hands recording singletons or voids, which leaves only 3 boards as balanced or semi balanced. Hands with 6 card suits on 7 of the 14 boards. Am I near to convincing you of using a Multi 2?

Acol players have used Benjamin Two's which define points for the first of the two openings, (2C = 21 points plus or 4 losers or less, whilst 2D = 19-20 balanced. Some players prefer to bid these in reverse to this edition. Whatever suits you.)

Whereas; -

2H or 2S = a six-card suit with 6-10 points

I would like to suggest a simple version of a Multi 2 which really does not take much to learn -

2C= 21 points or more or 4 losers

*2D = a 6-card major, 6-10 or 22, 23 balanced.

*2H = a 5-card H and a 5card other suit, 6- 10

*2S = a 5-card spade suit, with a 5 card Minor suit, 6-10

*2NT: both minors, 5-5 and 6-10 points

- # Opener's points need to be in his two suits, so it's no-good opening 2H, showing 5 card heart suit plus a 5 card minor, if the hearts are held by the 9!

The one No-NO with opening a 2D bid, when holding a 6 card major - you MUST NOT hold 4 cards in the other major. The reason being: partner might have 4 cards with you in the shorter major and you have just missed the best possible contract.

- Responder, with 13 points or more either bids to game with the known fit, or bids 2NT, asking opener for their other suit.
- With no support for opener's major, bid the next suit up. This needs to be alerted, warning the opponents that this is a prepared bid. Opener will pass if spades is their second suit or will bid their minor.

One thing to take on board is the fact that if opener shows a hand of 6-10 points and you have very few points, you do not need to push on in the bidding. The opponents have the balance of power. They might not bid to their full potential!

Have a look at these few hands -

South passes. West bids 2NT showing both minors, 6-10 points, North passes, East knows that opener will not have support for his majors, so he chooses to bid 3C, (A bid that does not want to be in game). South may bid his spades. It is a battle for a part score, not a game going hand. Neither East/ West need to take further action, just sit and defend. Card to lead: KC.

East: 2H, showing 5 hearts and a 5-card other suit.

South: 2NT, balanced, good cover in hearts and 15-18 points.

West: Pass. North knows their side has Game On. Either 4 S or 3NT.

West; 2S, North: 3H, (Own suit and 15+ pts,)

East knows their side does not have the points for game. At this moment, N/S are not in game. If East pushes to 3S, South will definitely go to game.

I have taken these hands as an example, taking poetic license with shifting the dealer! Just for practice.

Have a go, but most of all, Enjoy the experience.
